In addition, applicant notes with respect to any information that is not in English language as follows:

German Patent No. DE 195 42 962 C1 describes a short-circuit rotor having a squirrel-cage rotor (1) with rotor rods (2) of a good electrical conductor positioned in respective slots (12) of a rotor laminations packet (6) and short-circuit rings (3,4) at either end of the latter, connected to the projecting ends of the rotor rods. The short-circuit rings are provided by slotted lamination packets with Cu laminations (7), arranged in a number of relatively spaced partial lamination packets, for forming radial cooling channels (9).

German Auslegeschrift DE 11 16 311 describes a squirrel-cage winding having rods connected to short-circuit rings. The rods do not rest against the slot base in the area of the ends of the laminated core.

German Auslegeschrift DE 2 120 537 describes a squirrel-cage rotor having rotor rod ends being connected with axially compliant zones of short-circuit rings in an electrically conductive and mechanically rigid manner. The short-circuit rings are mounted on the rotor shaft and have an axial protrusion anchored in a conforming central recess of a mechanically more solid support ring. The short-circuit ring and the support ring are centered directly on the rotor shaft in an axially immobile manner.

The above-identified application discloses and claims an invention patentable over this prior art.

Entry of the references above set forth into the file of the above application is believed to be in order and is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted
